Admission and general treatment conditions

Dear owner,

today you brought your horse to our clinic for an examination / treatment / operation. We appreciate your trust in our clinic and our team and we will do everything possible to honor this. Nevertheless, we must inform you that complications may occur in rare cases.

Information:

Veterinary procedures such as joint, tendon sheath, vascular or organ punctures as well as endoscopic procedures can lead to complications despite professional performance. In individual cases, infectious, allergic or other secondary diseases as well as thromboses may appear. Since every intensive treatment and in particular operations as well as transportation of the horse and change of stables represent stress for the horse's organism, which results in a weakening of the immune system, diseases of any kind can occur during hospitalization. The listed complications are limited to very few individual cases. Nevertheless, we consider it our duty to inform you about the problems and risks.

You agree that, in the event of a therapeutic emergency, the horse may be treated after consultation with medication that is not approved for use on horses or other food-producing animals. I am aware that the use of the horse for the production of food constitutes a violation of the Food Act and can be punished as a criminal offence. In this case, you ensure that the horse admitted to the Nindorf Equine Hospital will not be used for food production. This declaration is valid indefinitely.

We are indicating that the hospital is not liable for damage to the animal or loss of the horse, unless the clinic is insured against such damage or such damage is not due to intent or gross negligence on the part of the veterinarians or their staff. The treatment contract is concluded for today's examinations as well as for all further examinations and treatments in the hospital mentioned above. A revocation of the treatment contract must be written and handed in to the equine hospital. Please also understand that we cannot accept any liability for vehicle damage, damage to trailers, theft of trailers, loss of halters, blankets, etc.
